Armed with old bastardized mid-century guitars, hand-me-down fiddles and banjos, home-made contraptions with just enough tension on a string to be considered an instrument and any random percussive item he can get his hands or feet on, Lincoln Durham is a Southern-Gothic Psycho-Blues Revival-Punk One-Man-Band with a heavy amped edge, preaching the gospel of some new kind of depraved music.

From the front porches, alleys, and rivers of Richmond, Virginia, comes Andy Jenkins carrying a crisp, newly cut album, Sweet Bunch. Hatched in the tradition of Southern culture unhurried in his art, unworried by external demands, yet weirdly ahead of the curve by the time he arrives Andy is a distinctive and joyously idiosyncratic songwriting talent developed for years in obscurity.

I don't know how the violet note isn't listed as the first main note by a wide margin--this thing is a violet BOMB on me and I don't like it. I remember smelling this when it first came out and liking it, but when I got a sample recently that violet exploded in my face and smothered out everything else in this fragrance.

The Galipaygos - The Demise Of Gary Lip-Gloss (Own Label) This is one of those discs of which I didn't immediately have high hopes, with its knowingly jokey title (and a cover shot to match) and laid-back opening track that just sort of ends after less than three minutes, but the weird thing is, its very chumminess insinuated itself into my head much thereafter and by around the time the next ...

Exhilarating and elusive, quaint and seductive. Prepared from choice red Virginias and heavily flavored with Orientals, giving it a red tinge. It burns in the pipe with the spontaneity of a fine cigar. New description: A charming, perfectly balanced dark mixture of Virginia tobaccos, Orientals, black cavendish and a luxurious quantity of latakia.
